As a nurse, do you know if your personal values and ethical positions are consistent with the values as outlined in the Nurse Practice Act and Standards of Care?

In everyday practice nurses make decisions about dimensions of care that involve ethics. Nurses are often seen as patient advocates. This program will provide a framework for nurses to identify and analyze ethical responsibility in everyday practice.

This is the second of this two-part series. Participation in Part 1 is not required to be able to enroll in this program. Video tapes of Part 1 and Part 2 are available for $25 each. (Price includes shipping & handling).
